PROPAK INDONESIA

ProPak Indonesia Back On Track!

On the back of a sold out event in 2009 and positive market projections for 2010, ProPak Indonesia 2010 returns 1-4 December 2010 as the country's longest running processing and packaging event.

Taking place as an integral part of Manufacturing Indonesia 2010, Indonesia's most important industrial trade event, ProPak Indonesia 2010 now in its 23rd edition, is set to provide a focus for the processed foods market growing by over 10% pa and a packaging market valued at over US$125 million.

2010 Positive Economic Forecasts

The Indonesian economy is expected to grow moderately by 5.2% in 2010, better than any neighbouring ASEAN economies.

A large domestic market with an emerging middle class and relatively young population whose consumption accounts for 60% of GDP will help drive healthy and solid growth going forward. This is underpinned by relatively low inflation and increased consumer bank financing activities. Similarly, foreign direct investment activities are set to rise in tandem with Indonesia's positive economic growth prospects and stable political scene following the recent legislative and presidential elections.

Within South East Asia, analysts have indicated that Indonesia is where they would put their money and that Indonesia's growth will have a stronger footing than its neighbours.

Source: British Embassy Jakarta, November 2009

"This is our first ever visit to Indonesia and we have been surprised by the high number of very knowledgeable visitors. We have also noticed that there is a good market here for our German technology from companies that have tried lower cost machines but realize they will get less material wastage and therefore better long term returns."

Thomas Piesik, Managing Director,
Wikon Thermoform, Germany

Why Exhibit?

- If you want to meet all the Indonesia's key food processing, packaging, pharmaceuticals and food ingredients buyers in one place at one time you need to be at Indonesia's main event.
- The used and reconditioned machine market is substantial representing over 25% of all machines sold in Indonesia.
- At the upper high tech end of the processing and packaging market, locally manufactured competition does not exist and all machinery needs to be imported.
